The Judicial Democratic Convention to nominate judges for the Supreme Court will be held at Springfield, Mo. The general State Convention to be held at St. Joseph July 20th.

The Commercial Bank at Fulton is in the hands of the Receiver of the State. P. S. Adams the Cashier left with $4,000 of the bank's funds on deposit.

The Democratic party seemed almost sure to win in the election at the last year. It was the voters should think for them. Many things were brought to light which a self-respecting Democratic paper cannot ignore.

The Bolivar Free Press, another Democratic paper for the day, is standing on the issues of today, but if our Democratic friends upon going back a generation or more to talk about, we would remind them that it was the Democratic administration which loaned the credit of these states to the railroads and thereby created a debt which has not yet been paid.

"The Plain People."

"The plain people" of the Missouri Bourbon machine came into collision the other day in the meeting of the Democratic state central committee of this state.

The Bourbon machine has made plans partly because it is feared that a primary will result in the election of Champ Clark on a platform of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1.

While we hear much of "the plain people" and their policy in democratic party councils, the real extent of their power in the government of that party in Missouri was well illustrated in the struggle in the committee over the primary proposition.

If anything more were needed to prove the proposition, the non-attendance of the majority vote in the committee would certainly apply it.

The chairman of the committee, Mr. Delbert, is the highest ranked office-holder in the state. The other committee members are all of the high aristocratic class.
