Pipe Line Now Carries 50,000 Barrels Of Oil A Day

An oil pumping station east of New Mills is now at work pumping oil from the Oklahoma oil fields to Woodruff, Ill. The oil fields pass under the Missouri River and across a portion of Warren County east of Dutson and then across St. Charles County. The station in St. Charles County is the one nearest to St. Louis. There are eight more such stations which are located at intervals of about 50 miles. Four of them are in Missouri and four in Illinois.

Each station is equipped with three pump units, two of which are in regular operation. On the company's 40-acre tract in St. Charles County are located the power plant, the manifold room, the boiler room and the pump house in addition to five bungalows in which the employees live.

Electric Light And Power
 Oil tapped from the cross-country mains is used to generate electricity for operation. The crude oil is burned by the Diesel engines at the rate of fifteen barrels per day. Besides driving the electric motors and illuminating lights, the current is also provided for the residents of the employees.

The pipe line is a double line and covers 394 miles. Oil is now being pumped at the rate of 50,000 barrels per day. This quantity would fill 250 of the railroad oil tanks.

The pipes are ten inches in diameter and are buried at an average depth of two feet.

The oil is a black substance Under pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, the fluid fills the pipes to capacity and travels approximately three-fourths of a mile an hour. In the manifold room of each station, a straining device has been installed to retain any foreign matter which may enter the line. When the first oil stream was forced thru the line, the strainers were clogged with weeds, brush and even turtles had entered while the welders joined the forty-foot sections last fall.

Like A Railway System
 The details of operating the schedules over the system may be compared to those of railway lines. Telephone and telegraph service is maintained. Dispatchers are on duty at all stations, and daily reports are sent in.

At the station in St. Charles county there are 13 men employed. The men work in shifts. One of the men is Arnold Poland of Troy who patrols the line in St. Charles county from the Mississippi River opposite Woodruff to the Missouri River at Washington and then doubling back making the trip on foot in two weeks.

As has been customary for the St. Vincent Farm Club of Dutson for a number of years, no dues were accepted after March 15, with the exception of new members. Our members have shown splendid cooperation along this line and their annual dues were paid by the 15th and we trust that the good work will be repeated this year.

The following verses were taken from one of our leading farm papers. They seem to fit our occupation as tillers of the soil. There is no doubt but what at some time or other each individual farmer seeds the cooperation of his neighbor and it is very essential that they get together when it comes to handling the marketing end of their business.

Can't Do It Alone
 It is willed we shall dwell as brothers.
 As brothers then we must toil.
 We must act with a common purpose.
 As we work in a common soil.
 And each who would see accomplished
 The dream that he's proud to own.
 Must strive for the goal with his fellows,
 For no man can do it alone.

Robbers Haul Away Goods
 Robbers at St. Charles stole ready-made clothing from the Palace Clothing Company on Main Street this week and apparently hauled the loot in a machine to St. Louis. A car was probably parked at the rear of the store and loaded thru a rear door. The following were listed as stolen: a dozen suits, 35 top coats, forty mens suits, and a dozen ladies sweaters. The loss is covered by insurance.

Senatorial Redistricting

Hopes for a change in the senatorial districts in Missouri were renewed Tuesday when the Democratic senators went into a conference.

Republicans for years have insisted on a revision of the senatorial districts, asserting the present status in Missouri is a "gerrymander" which gives the Democrats control of the upper house.

The Democratic majority also discussed the proposed plan for congressional redistricting, under which the state is divided into thirteen districts, eight of which are democratic and five republican. The bills in both houses are identical and are on the calendar for engrossment.

Mysteries Of Life

I don't understand how it is that our old house cat can come into the house and lie under the cook stove all day and up to ten o'clock at night where the thermometer must register nearly 100 in the shade; then when I put her out at night she sleeps under the back porch with the thermometer around ten or twelve above zero. But she bobs up as soon as I am up in the morning as fresh as a daisy while if I go out to the coal shed after a bucket of coal in my shirt sleeves I wake up the next morning wheezing and sneezing and nose running like a water faucet. Makes me think perhaps it would be a good idea for man to have been created with a fur lining.—Neosho, Mo., Miner.

Chinese Foods In Cans

It used to be that only dwellers in cities with a Chinese population could enjoy Chinese food. But today anyone can replace the strangely delicious food which the Chinese have perfected during their thousands of years of civilization.

Bamboo shoots, water chestnuts, show mein noodles, bean sprouts can all be bought in cans. And other foods are present in any market, real Chinese foods can be made anywhere.

How to Make Them

Here is the most approved method for making pork chop soup. Cut one-half pound lean pork in narrow strips and add to two table-spoons cooking oil and two table-spoons sauce, and sauté gently for fifteen minutes in a skillet. Cut two cups celery in narrow strips and one cup onions in thin slices.

Remove the bean sprouts from a can of Sub Kum and set aside to add at the last. Remove the bamboo shoots and water chestnuts from this can and cut in thin slices, then in narrow strips. Add celery, onions, bamboo shoots, water chestnuts and a small piece of ginger root to the skillet together with the juice from the can and two cups soup stock. Cover and cook until celery and onions are tender. Add one tablespoon flour moistened with a little water, cook until slightly thickened, add one tablespoon brown sauce and more soy sauce, if desired. Add the bean sprouts and heat a few minutes. Serve with hot rice. Any other meat can be used instead of pork.

To convert this recipe into chow mein, open a can of chow mein noodles onto a pie pan and put it in the oven to crisp. Arrange the noodles on plates, place the chop soy over and—there is the chow mein!
