Putting a pint to a quart of wood ash, well mixed with 10 lbs. of soil to the hill of potatoes in good practice in a small garden. Such says Samuel M. Jordan of the Missouri Glass Board experiment station. Ashes from ash wood are said to be stronger in rot-resistance, blight and so on, in the earlier named tubers while the burr oak and other hard woods than the softer woods. Leaching removes much of the necessary elements that make potatoes.

In many sections of Missouri communities are making concerted effort to burn over wood land and fence rows, and also to clean up or burn over rubbish heaps, brush piles and creek banks. Forest Commissioner Dr. E. C. Sullivan of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture indexes and advises this practice. It is important every year and especially so this year because the mild weather has so many insects get thru the winter alive.

Time is Money

INTO every corner of this great country, the radio nightly sends its program. "Time" on the air nets broadcasting stations huge sums weekly - advertisers are buying fifteen minutes, half hours, hours. And paying well for the period. Time is worth money to individuals too. Each day or each week will find you further along the road to financial security, if you have an account here, and add to it steadily. Safety is assured - service is a basic principle.
