Schweppe-Glosemeyer Wedding Wednesday, Aug. 30

St. Ignatius Church of Concord Hill was the setting of a beautiful wedding Wednesday morning, August 30, when Miss Barbara Glosemeyer, daughter of Mrs. Katherine Glosemeyer, became the bride of George Schweppe, son of Mrs. Bernadine Schweppe. Rev. Walfrid Hoische performed the ceremony, before a candle-lighted altar adorned with gladiolus.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Henry Glosemeyer. Her gown was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, accented at the corners by pearl clips, and the full skirt flared into a long train. A tiara of seed pearls held the tulle veil in place, over which fell a second veil secured to the cap with orange blossoms. Her ensemble was complemented with a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the Valley.

Miss Adelaide Schweppe, sister of the groom was maid of honor, and Miss Gertrude Glosemeyer, sister of the bride was bridesmaid. Their colonial gowns of lace were fashioned alike of orchid and aqua respectively. They wore flower coronets attached to netting trains which matched their dresses, and carried bouquets of tea roses. Mr. Schweppe was attended by Earl Glosemeyer as best man.

After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the groom, and in the evening a dance was given at the Legion Hall for their host of relatives and friends.

Mr. Schweppe and his bride will reside on the groom's farm near Marthasville.—C.

New Pear Wine Prize

All the judges of the National New Fruit Show, held in Louisville, August 18 and 19 were of the same opinion in the awarding of the grand sweepstakes prize. It went to a seedling pear which had been entered by Mrs. Mary Milner, of Salt Lake City, Utah. This year, which is of big size, beautiful appearance, delicious flavor, hardness and resistant to blight, and bears prolifically. It has been forty years in development. Altho 500 varieties of new fruits were entered from every state in the union and many foreign countries, the judges had no difficulty in choosing the pear sent in by Mrs. Milner as one of the most promising fruits to be brought to the attention of American horticulture in many years. Stark Bros. nurseries have secured exclusive control of this new pear and will apply for a new patent on it.

Will Have Clover And Prosperity Tour September 4

Arrangements have been completed for a Clover and Prosperity tour to be made next Monday, Sept. 4, beginning at the H. F. Hetlage farm south of Wright City. It will be the first such tour and is held with the idea of giving Clover and Prosperity delegates and visitors an opportunity to see in actual practice the things discussed at the annual conference.

Those taking the tour should assemble at the Hetlage farm at 1 p. m. About two hours will be spent in studying the terrace systems in use, observing the types of terrace outlets used, and seeing the double cropping system at this hespedeza. Other farms will be visited. A. W. Kleme of the Missouri College of Agriculture will assist in conducting the tour.

1500 HARDWARE DEALERS

Helped Make MISSOURI

PIONEER settlers brought to Missouri their axes and hammers, their axes and other tools to carve a living out of the new land. Crude indeed was the equipment with which they first broke the soil. But soon, as the new country progressed in the arts of civilization—and toward better living standards—they needed new tools. More modern farm machinery was called for. Nails, bolts, locks and other hardware supplies were required for more substantial homes and farm buildings. The growing demand for machinery, fencing, tools, hardware of all kinds, soon brought specialized merchants into the service of Missouri. Thus was born the great hardware business as we know it throughout Missouri today.

THE hardware dealer helped make Missouri. His merchandise made better homes, made it possible to replace the rough log cabins with frame dwellings, then provided them with comforts in keeping with the progress of the times. With the development of rural Missouri there came the need for new and more efficient farm equipment. The hardware dealer was quick to recognize and to meet this need, too.

TODAY, as always, he is an important and valuable business man in every community, furnishing an indispensable service. Missouri now has more than 35 recognized wholesale hardware firms, many of which have served as many as five and six generations of Missourians. And the needs of city and farm dwellers in every corner of the state are served by more than 1500 retail hardware dealers.

YOUR hardware dealer has grown with your State and helped your State to grow. In this way he is like your long-established tax-paying utility companies which supply you with water, gas and electricity. Like your utility companies, he has pioneered in service in Missouri. Like them, he has provided the means for making our homes comfortable and convenient and in making our lives happier and free from needless drudgery. He has, indeed, placed in hundreds of thousands of homes the very equipment with which you use electricity, gas and water. Both these great businesses—those furnishing utility services and those which provide the tools by which men live—have pledged themselves, through individual initiative and by common action through their associations, to maintain ever higher standards of service to the people of Missouri.
