MISSOURI MANUSCRIPT

By James K. Hutsell
derstand the Nineteen-Forties... we amused ourselves on New Year's Eve by sitting and slicing off large hunks of gloom.

Historians may not be able immediately to grasp the newness of that; but readers of today will know what an element of relief in a blackout that ours is a land where Mr. Putoff's pigs still retain economic significance.

All the bigger, blacker headlines to the contrary, it is allowed to go to the grave diggers without repeatedly pointing out that Missouri gave to the world in 1939 two other exceptional examples.

The Jackson County mouse, that in 1939 sang like a canary, and Lawrence Fredrick's two-headed turtle at Bell City are curiosities that you can skip.

Maybe they're not news, but they're—hey're, something.

A Winter Thrift Idea

SAVING money in winter is more difficult than in summer... foot bills, light bills, drug bills, winter coats. Consult your budget and you'll see. There is, however, an excellent way to cut down on the food budget, and have just as good food.

Have you watched the margin between canned and fresh food in summer and compared it to the winter margin? Fresh fruits and vegetables are often as cheap in mid-summer as canned vegetables, and if they are a bit more expensive we are tempted, anyway, by the fact fresh peaches in the market, the first homegrown peaches, etc. Perhaps we indulge ourselves to some of the fresh luxuries on the market.

Cut down in winter, then, when these fresh foods, shipped in, are almost out of reach, by laying in a supply of canned foods—which, after all, are these same fresh homegrown fruits and vegetables put into cans when they are at their ripest and best.

Homemade Jelly Wins Prize for Farmer!

LAST year Ervin Swinhart, of Garland, Wisconsin, received a premium from the Sawyer County Agricultural Fair for his homemade chokecherry jelly.

Mr. Swinhart, who farms 240 acres, admits that his hobby is helping children. As a school officer and 4-H Club leader, he believes that no leader can be a good leader without doing the work himself—and when it comes to lessons in jelly-making, a jelly winner certainly knows.

Mr. Swinhart's cooking ability runs in the family, too—for when his daughter, BEVER, was only 12 years old she won first place in the International Contest.

Any man who wants to make a batch of homemade jelly would do well to use a champion recipe like this one. You'll have a perfect product every time—whether or not he knows it at the fair to compete for a prize like Mr. Swinhart's!

FRESH MINT JELLY

(Makes about 8 medium glasses)
1 cup spearmint leaves and stems, washed
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup water
1/2 cup fruit peaches

Wash spearmint. Do not remove the leaves from stems. Measure into quart saucepan and press with wooden potato masher or glass. Measure sugar, vinegar and water into saucepan and mix with mint.

Bring to a boil over hottest fire. While mixture is coming to a boil, add coloring to give desired shade. The coloring which fruit adds do not fade. As soon as mixture boils, add bottled fruit peaches, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 10 minutes. Remove from fire and strain. To remove all trace of mint leaves, pour hot jelly through fine sieve into glasses. Paraffin hot jelly at once.

She Often Earns $5.00 in an Hour The American Housewife, realizing the value of advertising often earns $5.00 an hour just by reading the newspaper. She studies the advertising and learns where she can buy things she needs at the lowest prices. Then, she saves time as well as money by "buying from the ads." Often she merely steps to her phone and orders the advertised merchandise. Telephone purchases are made with complete confidence because she selects advertised brands which she knows have the uniformly high quality she can depend upon. Or, if she wishes to shop in person, she makes trips easier by going directly where bargains abound. Compare this modern American way of buying with those of days before advertising. In those days, Mrs. America dangled a market basket from her arm and started an expedition of exploration, with no advance knowledge of products she was to buy. She could not step up to a display counter and choose branded merchandise, with confidence in its quality. She bought from buckets and barrels and hoped for passable quality but seldom got it. Would you prefer to buy by guess or by the American Way—the way made possible by advertising? UPHOLD AMERICAN STANDARDS... BUY ADVERTISED BRANDS This is one of a series of advertisements prepared by the Advertising Club of St. Louis, showing consumer benefits gained through advertising.
